NOW-NOW-NOW

Finding little in my brief life, I have tried to bring some justice into the life of Milam County, no worse and no better than others in Texas.

In my mind, at least, I see the Milam area as a microcosm which might require less of heaven if earth is a little more.

I see religion as mystical philosophy, an explanation of the inexplicable by symbols of martyrdom, antiquity, and prehistory only the sub-conscious knows anything about.

It is not Utopia nor socialist-communist "equality" that is just or beautiful. These imply arrival. It is the knowing of the doing, the absolutes of "now" bowing to new "absolutes" in continuum.

NOW-NOW-NOW

A half-brother from St. Joseph, MO, was in town last weekend. And we spent a lot of hours rehashing 19 years we hadn't seen one another. St. Jo as it is called is the original starting place of the Pony Express, the first mail service West before trains and stage coaches.

Listening to my brother's opinions and World War II experiences, I concluded things hadn't changed much in that part of the Midwest, perhaps 50 miles north of Kansas City and Independence, MO, home of Missouri's Harry Truman, one of the most decisive, straight-talking men of this century.

Despite differences, I found we shared a bit of luck as he recalled 35 missions over Europe, primarily Germany in 1944-45.

He was shot down once over Belgium and lost three crews on other missions when he went on standby as bombardier-navigator.

And there was the mission his B-17 flew after the main elements had already dropped their bombs. For some reason, he recalled, "we went on solo to complete our mission, survived the flak and missed the 109s."

It got so, he said, other standby pilots, gunners, and crewmen waited to see when he drew a mission. He was the last of his original crew and several others he joined during his tour.

It was not all so lucky, though. He was called back early on in the Korean fracas when Air National Guardsmen were cannon fodder in 1950. Flak from WW II in his heel, kept him on instructor status in Guam just about the time perhaps a million "gooks" poured over the Yalu from Communist China.

He's sorta like Harry Truman. Plain spoken and opinionated to the point of overkill. But, man, he earned the right. And that's more than a lot of people can say these days.

City Due New $80,000 Grant

New Funds To Provide Help For Housing

The City of Cameron has been notified that it will receive an additional grant of $80,000 under the new Better Community Development Act.

This will add to the $492,000 grant which has been allocated the city under the act and which will be used for community betterment.

At a press conference Friday afternoon, Community Development Agency Director A. W. McCullin said the grant, which does not call for any matching funds from the city, will be administered through the Agency and the Cameron Housing Authority, as it is earmarked for housing improvement. The grant will apply under the new housing bill which is part of the Community Development Act.

McCullin said the funds can be used for new homes, rehabilitation of substandard homes and rent property, and for rent supplements.

He said the grant is for the 1975 year and there may be additional allocations for a second year.

Mayor Gene Blake, who was at the conference along with Mildred Thornton, chairman of the city planning commission, praised McCullin's efforts which were successful in obtaining this share of an allotment for Milam County.

McCullin said a December survey by Agency personnel of Cameron housing showed a total of 1,970 occupied houses, of which about 201 need extensive repairs and rehabbing, with 75-80 dilapidated, burned out vacant buildings.

Rent house owners who bring substandard homes up to standard would be eligible for rent supplements, McCullin said, but the houses must be brought up to comply with the city's housing code.

He added that $13,000 has been added to the city's first year allocation of $123,000 for the community development program, plans for which are now in Dallas for HUD approval.

City Receives Tax Refund

The City of Cameron banked a check for $20,693.11, representing refund on sales taxes collected during the last quarter of 1974. The payment came a full month earlier than usual.

"I said we would speed up the payments and we did," Comptroller Bob Bullock said. Last year payments for the last quarter were sent on March 25.

Gov. Briscoe Reveals School Plan

(Second of a series on school finance plans offered the Texas Legislature by Gov. Dolph Briscoe and Rep. Dan Kubiak. Kubiak's proposal appeared in the Feb. 27 issue of The Herald. Following is Briscoe's plan.)

AUSTIN

Gov. Dolph Briscoe formally unveiled his long-awaited school finance reform plan last week, and it would boost state school spending $589.9 million in the next two years.

Most of the money would go into Texas' poorest school districts.

The measure would also guarantee school teachers a substantial salary increase, but far short of the $10,000 minimum requested by the Texas State Teacher's Association.

The plan would basically tend to equalize school spending among the 1,100-plus Texas school districts by pegging the state share of the Foundation School Program (FSP) to the taxable wealth in each district.

A "fact sheet" distributed at the news conference said 536 districts enrolling 86 percent of the statewide student enrollment would receive more state aid under the plan.

Briscoe school advisor Richard L. Hooker conceded later, however, that the plan would equalize spending "to a degree," but not "in an absolute sense."

solite sense."

The very wealthiest "budget balanced" districts would continue to receive no foundation program aid. But none of their surplus taxable wealth would be used to finance education in poorer districts, Hooker said, predicting the legislature would never accept a plan to do that.

In addition, no district would have its state aid reduced below 1974-75 levels, even if the new property tax index called for such a reduction, Hooker said. The fact sheet showed 576 districts would be protected by this provision.

An no district would be required to increase local spending, even if the formula called for a higher local tax effort, according to the plan.

Briscoe defended the last provision, which would allow some districts to slip below the FSP spending floor, as a necessary protection for local schools.

Hooker pointed out that most districts could not maintain local taxes too low without risking loss of accreditation or violating the teacher pay guidelines.

The minimum salary for a beginner teacher with a bachelor degree -- now $6,600 a year -- would jump to $7,430 next school year and $7,840 in 1976-77, under the bill. The top

New filings for the school board include Roselee Mondrik and Rufus T. Floyd. Earlier, Keith Raine filed for one of the places. Incumbent board members Dana Kestenbaum and Billy Hornung, whose terms will expire, have not yet filed for re-election.

In the city council election, Mrs. Jan Luecke has filed for a place on the council. Lawrence Zottz has filed for re-election to his place but Bob Clark and Gene Lumpkin have not as yet filed for re-election. Clark has said he will not be a candidate for re-election.

Collision Injures One

A two car collision on Fourth Street at Karnes Thursday sent a Lubbock woman to the hospital and resulted in heavy damage to both vehicles.

Mrs. Jessie F. Courtney, a passenger in a car driven by her husband, was taken to a local hospital with undetermined injuries. The other driver, Miss Catherine Schoppe of Cameron, and her passengers, Mrs. Robert Moraw and Miss Becky Miller, were not hurt.

Both cars were traveling east on Fourth when the Courtney vehicle collided with the rear of Miss Schoppe's car. Police Chief Felipe Martinez investigated the accident.

Gas Rates Are Up

Local natural gas customers will find their February bills about $2 higher on the average because of a rate increase, Lone Star Gas Co. Manager Grady Allen said.

The rate increase became effective February 1, Allen said, and it was salary for a teacher with 10 years experience and a bachelor's degree would jump to $12,200 the first year and $12,860 the second.

Beginning teachers with a master's degree could expect a minimum of $8,200 the first year and $8,640 the second, while the most experienced teachers at this educational level would receive $13,440 in 1975-76 and $14,170 the following year.

The Foundation School Program spending level for each district would be established by a "weighted pupil plan," under the Briscoe bill. This formula -- already well-publicized -- would set a basic $635 spending level for each student in 1975-76 and $670 the next year. The figure would increase in following years according to a cost-of-living index.

Full time students -- or their equivalent -- in more expensive educational programs would receive more money. A home economics student, for example, would be "weighted" to receive two times the basic amount.

A nine-member School Aid Equalization Commission would be established to determine actual taxable property values in each district, but local school officials would continue to administer the tax program.

Tips For Vet's Tax Returns

Here are tips from the Veterans Administration on federal income taxes for veterans filing returns.

In general, Texas VA officials noted, veterans benefits are exempt from federal income tax, and need not be reported as income.

This income tax exemption applies to dividends and proceeds from government life insurance policies, but federal estate tax does apply to insurance proceeds. Also, interest earned on government life insurance dividends left on deposit or credit with VA is considered income and must be reported on federal income tax returns, it was explained.

Among major tax exempt veterans benefits are compensation, pension, GI Bill, and other educational assistance, including subsistence payments to vocational rehabilitation trainees.

HST, Please Come Home...

What the Democrats say is they need a program Democrats can agree on. What the President does is offer a program and increase the powers of a vice-president more nearly like a Democrat than Republican.

This says this country needs leadership. Washington only now is beginning to realize the rest of the country is wondering about economics, not international relations beyond economic implications and not the myriad of federal bureaus that make the "fat cat operations" no worse for size.

What the country is looking for, even singing pop songs about, is a decisive man who can sleep at night after making the decisions which turn things around. The song: "Harry Truman, Won't You Please Come Home?"

What Others Say ...

State Of The Courts, 1975

Chief Justice Warren Burger is performing an important service with his annual "state of the judiciary" talks in which he stresses the practical needs of the American legal system.

The Chief Justice doffs his customary judicial reserve on these occasions and speaks as an advocate for his profession.

In his message before the American Bar Association in Chicago recently, he took Congress to task for passing a "speedy trial" bill but failing to provide the money or manpower to implement it. He asked for another $10 million and 65 new judgeships to help handle the burgeoning federal court caseload.

A Senate subcommittee suggested over a year ago that less than half this number of judgeships be created, but the enacting legislation has not emerged. While Congress might well want to deliberate slowly over more radical proposals that come from the judiciary (such as the one to create a special panel of judges for screening out cases headed for the Supreme Court) it ought to consider swiftly the Chief Justice's modest requests for the withdrawal to run a competent federal court system. With all the talk on Capitol Hill and elsewhere about how the U. S. system of rule by law brought the country through the test of Watergate, it is extraordinary that the Chief Justice must take to the public his case for adequate congressional support.

Justice Burger spoke with equal candor about other aspects of the legal system. Despite the adoption of stiffer disciplinary codes in many states for curbing lawyer misconduct, and greater emphasis on ethics courses in law schools, Mr. Burger charged that the legal profession has "hardly scruti-ched the surface of the problem."

Leon Jaworski, former ABA president as well as former Watergate special prosecutor, strongly seconded the Chief Justice on this point at the Chicago meeting: "What constitutes my overriding concern," he said, "is the attitude of indifference exhibited to the preservation of the profession as one of trust and honor not only by lawyers who have practiced at the bar for decades but as well by those who are entering the profession in current times."

The Chief Justice added to his earlier complaint that perhaps half the country's lawyers are not competent to take on serious cases. He said the influx of young, unseasoned lawyers into federal courts due to the rise in case loads threatens to make the courts a "bush league facility for the training of tribal lawyers for private practice."

Many signs point to a rebound in the American legal profession's vitality in the wake of the Watergate scandals, which involved so many lawyers in criminal action. Law schools are receiving more than two applications for every classroom seat. And the Justice Department happily notes it can choose from among 3,000 applicants in filling only 130 expected openings.

The state of the nation's judiciary, however, must be nourished by more than the recruitment of young talent in response to recent dramatic legal and courtroom action in Washington. As Mr. Burger indicates, the more mundane issues of the number of judgeships and adequate salaries, as well as procedural reforms, determine how effectively such talent is put to work.

VIENNA
Reuter -- Faced with the threat of another Middle East war and economic uncertainties in Israel, an ever-swelling number of Soviet Jewish emigrants are heading for other destinations once they reach the West.

The trend has quickened in recent months and emigration officials say that on some days only a small handful out of several dozen arriving in Vienna by rail and air choose to travel on to Israel.

While only 4 percent of emigrants arriving in Vienna between 1971 and 1973 went to countries other than Israel, in 1974 the proportion rose to 16 or 17 percent.

While the total number of emigrants arriving here dropped last year to 21,000 from 35,000 in 1973, the number who did not go on to Israel more than doubled from 1,400 to over 3,500.

Israel is the only permitted destination for emigrants leaving the Soviet Union, but once they reach Vienna, the channel through which they all pass, they are free to change their minds.

The motives are not hard to find. Many have doubts about taking their families to a potential war zone in the middle east and have heard of economic difficulties in Israel.

Others have few emotional or cultural links to Israel and say their main impulse in emigrating was simply to get out of the Soviet Union. Some Jews have non-Jewish relatives with them and do not want to live in a Jewish state.

The fact that with rare exceptions, only people of Jewish ancestry can hope to emigrate at all, means that for Russians, marriage to a Jewish emigrant can bring an otherwise unobtainable ticket to the west.

The situation is not without a certain black humor. "A Jew is not a luxury but a means of transportation," is one favorite saying among the new arrivals.

For most, the economic attractions of the west proved the main reason for leaving, along with frustration at the cultural and social restrictions of Soviet society.

"Life just seemed to be a long obstacle race," said one Moscow engineer in his 30's. Describing how he risked legal penalties by doing technical design and consultancy work as a freelance in his spare time.

Most of the emigrants on their way to the United States and other western countries have some technical qualifications and say they hope for better rewards for their skills in the west.

One former Soviet dissident and labor camp prisoner now living in Vienna after leaving the Soviet Union under the threat of arrest takes a harsh view of his fellow-migrants.

"A lot of them were living quite well in the Soviet Union and had no real reason for leaving. Some of them are making a big mistake - if you want to live well without doing a stroke of work, there's no better place than the Soviet Union. You can't do it so easily in the capitalist world."

Emigrants who take the traditional route to Israel are whisked out of Vienna within a few hours by the Jewish agency, sometimes making a one-night stay at a Red Cross Welfare Centre near Vienna Airport.

The Center replaces Schoenau Camp, a Jewish agency migration center which the Austrian government closed in 1973 as part of a bargain struck for the release of Jewish hostages seized by Palestinian guerrillas.

The migrants now stay only a few hours in Austria instead of days, and the Red Cross Center appears to be working well.

Those bound for other countries spend a few days in Vienna, staying in cheap hotels under the care of the Joint Distribution Committee, a U. S. relief organization.

Their time is spent looking round Vienna, and though their 45 schillings a day (about 20 dollars) allowance provides little opportunity for big spending, they have a chance to eke it out by selling their Soviet radios, cameras, or books second-hand.

Questions about life in the west follow a familiar pattern -- How much does a Volkswagen cost? Can people in the western countries really travel abroad without getting permission from the government? Which is better, Canada or the United States?

Sometimes, the questions show first twinges of homesickness -- Are there any Soviet films on in Vienna?

Another American charity, United H. I. A. S. (Hebrew Immigrant Aid Society) looks after onward transport and settlement for most of them. Non-Jews, few in number, are generally referred to other charities such as the Tolstoy Foundation or the International Rescue Committee.

After leaving Vienna, the emigrants travel on to Rome, where they can expect a wait of several weeks while their applications are dealt with.

For most of them, the U. S. is the final stop. Some Jews with a German background from the Baltic states go to West Germany, but few West European countries are actively seeking migrants.

Canada and Australia have also halted or restricted their inflow of migrants, but the door to the U. S. stays open under immigration provisions which grant refugee status to most emigrants from Communist countries.

White Community party members have to prove that their membership was not voluntary, almost all other are admitted as conditional entrants unless they have a criminal record or a history of insanity.

But security checks and immigration procedures are lengthy, and the number of those waiting in Rome for entry to the U. S. has now swollen to around 2,000.

ALUMINUM BUBBLE rises above a half-cylinder of corrugated steel on a flat snow plain extending for hundreds of miles. Center of the United States' new Amundsen-Scott South Pole Station, the geodesic dome, measuring 164 feet in diameter and 52 feet high, houses three two-story buildings. The 46-foot diameter half-cylinder, with its links, extends more than 800 feet.

New South Pole Station Features Computers

Even in their wildest dreams, early polar explorers never would have imagined wall-to-wall carpeting, computers, and a sauna at the bottom of the world while outside the thermometer is a frigid 90 degrees below zero.

Other amenities also at the United States' new Amundsen-Scott South Pole Station include a small gymnasium, a movie theater, and a library.

"The biggest luxury will be enough space to give small private rooms to the 18 people who will spend nine isolated months at the facility," says National Science Foundation spokesman.

down a window shade separating the two parts of the day," he wrote.

Undaunted by Conditions

The explorer's widow, Mrs. Ruth Siple, now a National Geographic employee, recently went to the South Pole for the dedication of the new base. "It's amazing, some of the hardships the early Antarctic explorers took for granted," says Mrs. Siple.

"I dined on steak and lobster at a VIP meal at the Pole, but when Paul first went to Antarctica as a 19-year-old Eagle Scout with Admiral Byrd's party in 1928, the winter meat supply consisted of the seals they managed to trap and kill. The men slept in bunks along the sides of a wooden mess hall, and the furniture was upturned crates and boxes."

Conditions forced the Byrd party to go for weeks without a bath or change of clothes. They called themselves the Knights of the Gray Underwear.

Dome Shelters Buildings

Heart of the base is a 52-foot-high geodesic dome that encloses three two-story buildings. Other facilities are housed under sections of a 46-foot-wide corrugated steel arch that extends, with its connecting links, more than 800 feet.

Funded by NSF and the United States Navy, the new buildings replace a nearby station built in 1956 and now being crushed under 40 feet of ice and snow, the National Geographic Society says.

Hard-working scientists and support personnel billeted there in recent years coped with leaking ceilings and sagging walls. "We had to use a 55-gallon drum just to collect the snow melt in the mess hall," recalls an Antarctic veteran.

The old station grew from prefabricated aluminum-plywood buildings linked by snow-covered burlap and chicken wire tunnels. Many of the men who spent the long six-month winter night at the Pole reported later that things like leaky roofs did not bother them so much as a gnawing desire to be alone. Crowded into cramped quarters, seeing the same faces week after week, they longed for solitude.

"Mr. Antarctica," the late Dr. Paul A. Siple, first scientific leader at the original facility, recalled that each night in the lonely hour before sleep came he concentrated on the world outside as a relief.

"All day long there were other people. Then bedtime came and you were absolutely alone. It was like pulling

1040 U.S. Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q. I want to pay two installments of federal taxes at the same time - the balance due on my 1974 tax and the first installment of my 1975 Declaration of Estimated Tax. Is it alright to pay these amounts with one check?

A. If you pay two federal taxes at the same time, you should write separate checks or money orders. Write your social security number on the checks or money orders. Business taxpayers should use their employer identification numbers.

Q. I work full time, and make a little spending money from doing hairdressing at home. Do I have to pay self-employment tax on the income from hairdressing?

A. You must file an income tax return and pay self-employment tax if you have net earnings from self-employment of $400 or more. This is true even if you are 65 or over and are receiving social security benefits.

Also, you may be required to pay social security tax. If you had wages in 1974 that were subject to social security tax, you must subtract them from $13,200, the 1974 social security tax wage base to determine the maximum amount subject to self-employment tax. If your wages subject to social security tax are at least $13,200, none of the net earnings from self-employment is subject to this tax. In 1975, the amount of wages subject to social security tax will increase from $13,200 to $14,100, but the rate for computing the tax will stay the same at 7.9 percent.

Q. How can I get an extension of time to file if I can't file my tax return by April 15?

A. You may receive an automatic two-month extension of time to file your tax return by filling out in duplicate Form 4868, Application for Automatic Extension of Time to File U. S. Individual Income Tax Return. In filling out Form 4868, you must make a tentative tax estimate for the year. The original of the application must be filed, on or before April 15, with the Internal Revenue Service Center for your area. You must also make full payment of any tax due with the application. Reuters International News Briefs

HAVANA

The United States way of life is still visible in communist Cuba despite almost daily attacks on "Yankee imperialism" by local news media. Visitors to this island are surprised to see the extent of US culture, tastes, and customs more than 14 years after the US broke relations with Premier Fidel Castro's government.

PEKING

The swarms of white-masked cyclists look like a hospital workers' tour de France. But it's just Peking commuters combating the winter storms of yellow dust that blow in from the Gobi Desert to choke the Chinese capital.

WASHINGTON

Every 20 minutes someone's life ends in the United States in a shattering blast from a firearm, and in the past 10 years the total of gun murders, suicides and accidents tops 200,000. Such a grim toll is hardly surprising, given the ease with which a firearm can be bought and the fact that some 90 million guns are floating among 205 million people.

AMSTERDAM

Growing hordes of musk rats are undermining Holland's dikes and endangering its defenses against the traditional enemy--the sea. The glossy black or brown rat, originally imported into Europe from North Africa because of its valuable skin, has spread through the country in recent years, burrowing its way into the crucial dikes from under water.

MEXICO CITY

A case against a powerful state governor here has led to hesitant optimism that the traditional immunity of senior Mexican officials from criminal prosecution is ending. On the face of it, Mexico's austere President Luis Echeverria is mounting the toughest attack on corruption, leading the governor to go into hiding rather than face fraud charges.

JOHANNESBURG

In a move which could have wide-ranging repercussions, black and white cricketers are preparing to play together--challenging the spirit, if not the letter, of South Africa's apartheid sports policies. If successful, their bid for integrated fixtures would greatly encourage other sports to take the same step.

Citizens
To Observe
Prayer Day

On World Day of Prayer, March 7, Church Women United in Cameron will join millions of people in a chain of prayer spanning six continents. This 89th celebration of World Day of Prayer will be observed in a thousand languages and dialects by Protestant, Orthodox, and Catholic Christians in 169 lands.

A special service will be held in Cameron at the First Presbyterian Church at 2 p.m. Friday with Rev. James E. Lafferty as speaker. Mayor Gene Blake issued a proclamation designating Friday as World Day of Prayer in Cameron.

The International Committee for the World Day of Prayer has designated Church Women United as the official sponsor of the World Day of Prayer in the United States. The International Committee chooses a theme and appoints a group of women from a different part of the world to write the worship materials for each year.

The theme for 1975 is "Become Perfectly One," a search for the meaning of Christian unity in the broader context of a pluralistic society. The worship service has been prepared by the Women's Ecumenical Prayer Fellowship of Egypt.

Thousands of Christian women who are outside the Orthodox tradition will be able to savor a service that includes elements from a liturgy dating back to the early centuries of Christendom as well as elements born of the Arab experience of Protestantism and Catholicism.

In addition, offerings make possible gifts to short-term projects to meet emerging opportunities and needs such as: reconstruction and rehabilitation services to women and children victimized by war; ecumenical ventures and international conferences for women; pilot projects in self-help programs for refugee women; day care centers; family planning, health and nutrition education, and clinics.

Extra Care Due Roses

A little extra care of those rose bushes in your home landscape can bring a season of beautiful blooms.

"Prune roses now and also plant new varieties," advises Everett Janne with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"Plant bare-root rose bushes about four weeks before the average last frost date in your area. However, potted bushes can be set out at any time."

Prune roses in early spring before active growth starts, suggests the landscape horticulturist. Cut off any insect damaged or diseased canes.

When pruning, leave about five vigorous canes 18-24 inches tall. For an abundance of small blooms on Hybrid Tea varieties, cut back about one-fourth of the plant. For medium-sized flowers, prune back about one-half of the growth and for exhibition-size roses, prune about three-fourths of the plant.

Janne suggests pruning rambling and climbing roses after they bloom. However, some long stems must be left to produce flowers.

"After pruning, cover the cut end of the cane with asphalt wound dressing or caulking compound. This will prevent larvae of carpenter bees from burrowing into the canes," notes the horticulturist.

To keep roses healthy, weed and fertilize the garden area regularly. Apply one half cup of 8-8-8 or a similar fertilizer at least a foot from the trunk of the rose bush and reapply every three or four weeks if the soil is sandy or infertile.

Apply a two-inch mulch of sawdust, wood chips or peat moss to the soil to retain moisture and retard weed growth.

Spray roses with a fungicide - Benlate or Manzate -- every week during the summer to control black-spot.

"Try growing a few miniature roses this spring," suggests Janne. "They are hardy and are good for low border plantings, rock gardens, window boxes and as house plants."

Southern Fried Chicken — From the South of Italy

Southern Fried Chicken is a different kind of taste treat.

NEW YORK (ED) — Old-fashioned Southern Fried Chicken is surely an all-time family favorite. For a change-of-pace taste, try fried chicken from the south of Italy, not the United States.

In this savory switch of a dish, from the kitchens of Progresso Foods, the chicken is marinated in milk just touched with the tang of oregano, then crisped in Italian flavored bread crumbs and garnished with olives. An appropriate side dish would be Italian-accented macaroni salad. Just cook macaroni according to package directions, dress with mayonnaise, add diced red and green peppers and salt and pepper to taste.

ITALIAN SOUTHERN FRIED CHICKEN
2 chickens (2½ lbs. ea.), cut up for frying
1 qt. milk
1 tsp. oregano
flour
salt and pepper
3 eggs, beaten
3 cups Progresso Red-Flavored Italian Bread Crumbs

¾ cup olive oil
3 lemons, quartered
12 green or black olives

Marinate chicken pieces 3 hours in milk, seasoned with oregano, turning pieces occasionally. Drain and dry chicken thoroughly. Season chicken pieces with salt and pepper, dust lightly with flour, dip in beaten egg, dredge generously with flavored bread crumbs. Heat oil in large frying pan over medium-high heat. Brown chicken on all sides, a few pieces at a time. When all pieces are browned, return drumsticks and thighs to pan. Cover pan, reduce heat to low and cook 10 minutes. Add wings and breasts and cook 15 minutes longer, covered. Remove lid, raise heat and re-crisp bread crumb coating. Transfer to hot serving platter and garnish with lemon quarters and olives. Serves 6.

Yoe Girls Take First District Match

The Yoe High volleyball team participated in their first district match last Friday in Rosebud-Lott. The Cougars were slow in their first volleyball outing since their basketball program took them into the bi-district playoffs where they were defeated.

In the junior varsity action the Yoe girls took the match in two games. In the first game Yoe won 15-1, and in the second, 15-13. The high pointer for Yoe was split between Genoveva Soriano and Alivia McIntyre, hitting over 8.

Rosebud-Lott was not to be denied of a win throughout the evening's play and stunned Yoe 15-13.

In the deciding game for the district match, Yoe came back with a great volley effort, 15-9. Patricia Johnson

Murray-Go-Round

Think you've heard all the football recruiting stories? How about the prospective recruit who told one SWC Coach, "I'll sign with you if you'll promise to keep points and sparkplugs in my car." They refused and he said "Adios". All those who think Oklahoma's Blue-chip recruiting raid into Texas was blue arrow stand on your head 30 minutes a day just wait. Answers won't be long in coming.

The Big Media college coaches almost drove Big Star to a nervous breakdown. You see, he's the same kid who telephoned a very famous football coach and asked him to come see him--that he'd changed his mind and was, too, interested in signing with his school. One thousand dollars of chartered airplane later, this prominent coach was completely and rudely stood up by said Super Stud. Yes, this youngster signed with Oklahoma.

Then, there was the running back, out in West Texas, who telephoned one Head Coach, said when he signed his National Letter-of-Intent, please don't send an assistant coach. So, Big Coach gets handful of airplane, flies to West Texas to clinch the star he'd already signed to SWC Letter-of-Intent. When he gets there, he is also left standing at the door. After asking the Head Coach to pamper him with his personal appearance, this 18-year-old brat not only stood him up, but also signed with Oklahoma.

New Bill To Authorize City Bonds

Senator Bill Patman has introduced SJR 38 to authorize industrial revenue bonds for Texas cities and counties. Forty-four other states, including all states surrounding Texas, currently have this means of attracting industry.

In the most recent year for which figures are available, 457 bond issues were approved. These created directly 47,000 new jobs, and were responsible for the indirect creation of an estimated 94,000 jobs. Sixty-two percent of the industries which were attracted, and for which facilities were provided, located in communities of less than 50,000 population.

Within the last two years, at least 13 plants financed by revenue bonds have located within a few miles of the Texas border.

"Had revenue bonds been authorized in Texas," said Senator Patman, "some of these new industries would certainly have come here."

He noted that the Texas Chamber of Commerce has reported that all of their big plants are on the Arkansas side because revenue bonds are available there.

Kitchen crowding can be eased with island addition framed with 2x4-inch western wood, faced with 1x4-inch paneling. Island adds food preparation area, counter for quick meals, drawers on one side, cabinets on the other for welcome storage.

Kitchen Island Eases Lack Of Space For Work, Eating

Adding an island for food preparation and casual eating can unjam a kitchen and for many homemakers ease the common complaint of too-little storage and counter space.

The island work area also can cure a kitchen runaround by replacing a large, low table that's too crowded with chairs to be of much comfortable use while cooking.

An efficient kitchen island combines a work area, breakfast/lunch counter, storage cabinets and drawers. It's easily framed with 2x4-inch western wood and clad with solid board paneling.

Casters Add Mobility

The island can be free-standing and fitted with casters for moving around the kitchen if desired, or it can be fixed to the ceiling with 4x4-inch posts. Continuation of the paneling above a pass-through allows the island to serve as a room divider in a large kitchen.

In addition to the work area and storage problems that an island can solve, it also can spark a general upgrading of the entire kitchen. The paneling can be applied to cabinet fronts and to walls around the cabinets.

Creating a kitchen island is a good way to hold costs down on remodeling, by avoiding structural changes such as removing walls and relocating plumbing.

Start With Shelves
Another easy and inexpensive way to add storage to a kitchen, on an unused wall, is to hang rows of wood shelves on adjustable brackets. Western pine 1x8s or 1x10s are suitable for this use.

The shelves can be enclosed later in cabinets framed with 2x2-inch lumber and covered with 1x4 or 1x6-inch paneling. In kitchen areas subject to frequent splashing, wood paneling can be sealed and lightly waxed for easy cleaning.

Otherwise, the wood can be left unfinished for full enjoyment of its natural color and grain texture.

Sales Gains Seen In Mobile Homes

Mobile home output will rise to 525,000 units this year, predicts the U.S. Department of Commerce. This would be 50,000 more than in 1974.

Demand is expected to shift to 14-foot-wide and 24-foot double-wide units. Many present owners will upgrade to new mobiles, built to higher insulation and heating standards.

Mobile homes amounted to an estimated 20 percent of housing starts in 1974.

Alcoa Selects Kentucky Site For Rolling Mill

Aluminum Company of America has selected Brandenburg, Kentucky, as the site for a major future rolling mill to supply the growing aluminum sheet market. The location involves several thousand acres bordering the Ohio River in Meade County.

Alcoa said it has yet to establish a timetable for the project, and that the timing will depend on the rate of market growth for sheet, the extent to which the company can add new capacity at its four existing roll mill locations, and the availability of investment capital.

The company explained that the site acquisition was motivated by a long-range planning study of future sheet requirements which indicated that while additions can be made to present rolling capacity, it eventually will be advisable to establish a fifth location. Alcoa now rolls sheet at Davenport, Iowa; Alcoa, Tenn.; Lebanon, Pa.; and its Warrick Operations near Evansville, Ind.

Alcoa noted that while the prospective rolling mill would be substantially larger than any of the company's present sheet mills, it would be built in stages to provide both the company and the community full opportunity to plan deliberately for beneficial growth.

Announcement of the future venture was made at this time because Alcoa's land optioning program is essentially complete. The company explained that while its usual practice is to announce new projects only when specific commitments can be made, its involvement in Meade County is being disclosed now to provide information that will avoid misconceptions.

The company also said that any long-range planning involving a major plant installation is subject to change in the light of future circumstances, as an example, Alcoa noted that it has for some time owned land in Kentucky's Union and Crittenden Counties as a site for a smelter - acquired because the area offered large tonnage of coal for power generation. However, during the intervening years, increasingly rigid environmental restrictions on the burning of bituminous coal have, in Alcoa's opinion, presented a growing deterrent to the construction of a generating plant based on the high-sulfur coal of that area. They have added materially to the cost and make it impossible even to plan development until some of the many uncertainties are resolved.

"Selection of the Meade County location for a major new facility means that Alcoa has carefully evaluated area availability of labor, utilities, transportation, and materials, and has decided these factors can be met at this location," J. Edwin Perryman, manager of Alcoa's Real Estate Division, said.

"When the decision regarding a construction schedule is made, Alcoa will consult local and state officials and area citizens to work out plans for orderly development of the project. Nothing precipitous or disruptive to community planning will take place because we are committed to a program that will prevent this. We have chosen this area because of its advantages, and we want Alcoa to become one of them."

Perryman added that the full acreage under option probably would not be required for the sheet mill complex. Surveys and test drilling are being carried on now to determine the best location, and some options may not be exercised.

Perryman also said the engineering of the new sheet mill complex will be undertaken with full consideration of environmental factors to insure that all state and federal regulations are met or exceeded.

Two Texans Named To Job Corps Hall Of Fame

Two Texans who rose from the ranks of the disadvantaged through education and skills they acquired in the Job Corps have been named to the Corps' "Hall of Fame."

H. Jean Henderson of Dallas and Jessie Al Lane of Austin were among 10 Job Corps graduates saluted by Secretary of Labor Peter J. Brennan for "exemplifying those qualities that have made America great" at the national observance of the Job Corps' 10th anniversary in Washington, D. C.

The names of these two, and eight other graduates picked from 60 Job Corps Centers, will be inscribed on a plaque which will hang in a place of honor in the new Department of Labor headquarters building in the Capitol.

Jean Henderson, a widow, was supporting her three children on her motel maid's pay of $25 a week in 1967 when she enrolled at the Job Corps Center for Women in McKinney, Texas. Within a year she earned a high school diploma equivalency, completed a course in office skills, and began working at clerical occupations.

Today she is a secretary in the Dallas Regional Office of the Social Security Administration, earning $10,000 a year and owning her own home. She is still furthering her education at Dallas Junior College, and finds the time to teach Sunday school and speak about the Job Corps on television and at business club luncheons.

Jessie Al Lane enrolled at the Timber Lake (Oregon) Job Corps Center in 1971. At 20 he had earned his high school equivalency and enough skills to qualify as an apprentice plasterer.

Lane is now earning $12,000 a year as a working member of Local 783 in Austin, has bought a mobile home and supports his mother, brother, and a nephew. He devotes much of his time to counseling potential and present Job Corps members and to helping recent graduates adjust to their new jobs and productive life styles.

4-H Council Elects Leaders

New officers have been named for the Milam County 4-H Council at a meeting Feb. 18.

Leroy Stephens was elected chairman; Rebecca Riola and Gene Garza, vice presidents; Suzanne Sims, secretary; Lorna Biar, treasurer; Denise Biehle, reporter; Curtis Wise, parliamentarian; and Gary Bleker, Tami Gray, Gery Hollas, Jocelyn Glaser, Donna Hause and Nathaniel Whitfield as recreation leaders. Adult leaders elected to work with the council include Boyd Stephens, Mrs. Charles Riola, Mrs. Harold Biar, Mrs. Billy Graham, Mrs. Hugo Hollas, Mrs. Ray Biehle and Mrs. Gabriel Garza.

New Couturier Fabric Is 100 Per Cent Cotton

One of the nation's leading fabric converters for couturiers, with a reputation for supplying fine quality cloth made from synthetic fibers, has placed the first order in its history for 100 percent woven cotton.

G. Hirsch Sons, Inc., of New York City, known to apparel makers in the world of high fashion as an impeccable supplier, has adopted fabrics from the "Croft-Spun" group, a development inspired by Cotton Incorporated.

Cotton Incorporated represents America's cotton producers as their fiber marketing company.

"Hirsch is a dynamic image-making company, distinguished by the quality of their offerings," said J. Nicholas Hahn, vice president of sales and marketing at Cotton Inc.

"For years they have dealt only in fabrics of polyesters, nylons, and silks. Their decision now to go with cotton is a welcome sign that the resurgence of cotton continues unabated."

Hahn said the Hirsch move supports Cotton Incorporated's position that cotton is truly a "total wardrobe" fabric, which works just as well with the "Cadillacs" of high fashion as with the "Fords" of popular-priced goods.

"Cotton is unmatched for comfort next to the skin," Hahn said, "and unexcelled for outerwear fashion in garments from the finest designers and tailors."

The Cotton Incorporated official said the new Hirsch offering will come in a nine-ounce weight, suitable for men's and women's outerwear.

"Customers in smart shops and better department stores will find the new fabric in sportswear and informal wear next spring," he said.

Hahn said the Hirsch decision marks another success in the competitive marketplace for Cotton Incorporated's apparel mill marketing men, who represent U. S. cotton growers.

Veterans Eligible For New Insurance

An estimated 2.7 million Vietnam-era veterans separated from April 2, 1970, through July 31, 1974, are eligible for new low-cost Veterans Group Life Insurance (VGLI), but they must apply before August 2, 1975.

The new program is designed as interim protection during readjustment to civilian life, according to the Veterans Administration.

Servicemen discharged since August 1 receive application forms automatically, but those discharged before the insurance became available must apply, Jack Coker, VA Regional Director, said.

Consumer Market Report

Retail beef prices dipped in the past two weeks, and most stores have even lower, "special" prices on various cuts of mature and baby beef, Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt reports.

Consumers should check ads for family preferences, the consumer marketing information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service advised.

"Best values will appear on round steaks and roasts, ground beef, chuck roasts, calf and beef liver."

Retail pork prices remain higher levels - with best prices on smoked hams, end-cut rib chops and roasts, the Texas A&M specialist added.

At poultry counters, fryer chicken supplies are ample at slightly higher prices. Even so, serving chicken three or more times weekly will likely cut most families' food budgets, Mrs. Clyatt noted.

"Vegetable selections include abundant supplies of broccoli, dry onions, and potatoes - with prices on potatoes substantially lower than a year ago."

"Cabbage, carrots, turnips, and celery supplies are about the same."

"Canned vegetable prices are not down, but specials are expected on many of these products," she predicted.

GOP Sets Conference

WASHINGTON
More than 1,500 Republicans from across the country are expected to meet here March 6-8 with GOP leaders to chart the future of their party.

"We'll be taking a look at the real political situation and laying out some realistic strategies for the future," said National Chairman Mary Louise Smith. "I think this conference will mark a turning point for our party... a turning away from defeat and toward rebuilding and victory," she said.

Party luminaries scheduled to speak at the conference include Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, Missouri Gov. Christopher S. Bond, Senators Robert Dole of Kansas, Jacob Javits of New York, Charles Percy of Illinois, and Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania. Also speaking will be Congressman John Rhodes of Arizona, John Rousselot of California, Jack Kemp of New York, and William Steiger of Wisconsin.
